Expect Record Crowd at County Picnic Tomorrow

Forsyth Park to Be Scene of Biggest Gathering When Country and City Combine to Forget Business and Devote Their Time to Pleasure—Seventy Merchants to Close Stores—Picnic Program Contains Features to Interest Everybody.

Wednesday morning, early, all roads will lead to Kingston and once in Kingston all streets will lead to Forsyth Park, where the biggest, best and most complete picnic ever held in Ulster county will take place. Nothing has been left undone by the various committees to make the 1926 annual picnic of the Ulster County Farm and Home Bureau and Chamber of Commerce the greatest picnic ever put on.

Forsyth Park, where the picnic will be held, is an ideal location for the event. There is ample room for all and parking space for cars has been provided to take care of every car which comes, be it early or late. This year the picnic committee has taken on additional responsibilities and there will be entertainment for all. Not the usual long speeches, but real fun and a good time without a care to mar the joys of the day.

Troopers to Care for Crows.
Plans are being made to handle one of the biggest crowds which has ever congregated in the county. The State Troopers will be on hand to police the grounds and direct traffic, assist in the parking of cars and do anything which is necessary to make the day one of enjoyment for the thousands who will for one day forget business and devote the time to play.

In order that all may join in the festivities over 70 of the local stores will close at 12:30 o'clock giving each employee a chance to attend the biggest picnic of the year.

Plenty of "Eats."
The closing of the stores however does not cause a famine among those who attend the picnic for there will be plenty of refreshments for all. There will be the milk bar, the candy booth, ice cream booth, cold drinks, hot coffee booths and of course Millard Davis will have the ever popular "daws" for sale. Sandwiches and cake will be on sale and there will be the juicy slices of ice cold watermelon to top off.

This year there has been a rearrangement of the ticket selling booths. There will be five cashiers located at various places on the grounds and in order to avoid confusion it might be well to buy a ticket early if the late crowds are to be avoided.

Champion Horse Shoe Pitcher.
For those who have indignation and who are not keen over the good things to eat there will be something in the way of entertainment which will be well worth while. Then, too, there will be the various games and sports. "Pott" Mossman, world champion horse shoe pitcher, will be present to show the Marlborough, Gardiner and Wallkill boys how to toss them over. He will put on an exhibition game and of course there will be the usual hot contest for the championship cup of the county.

There is no stated time for the picnic of the picnic Wednesday but the committee urges that in order to enjoy the day to its full extent it would be well to get to the picnic grounds as early as possible. Things will begin to happen early and at 10 a. m. the county horse shoe pitching tournament will begin.

State Troopers to Exhibit.
The crack rough riding team of 2000 C. State Troopers, which has been recently returned from the Philadelphia sesquicentennial where they carried off the first honors and a silver cup, will put on their staff. These boys from Sidney exhibited at the last picnic but since then they have added new stunts and will have a thrill or two for the people. At Philadelphia in competition with troops from three states they easily won the silver cup as well as a medal for each of the men who participated in the exhibition. Captain Parker, a troop of men who can ride and will ride for an Ulster county audience. Their program includes: Chuck riding, right hand, Roman drill, left hand, right hand, double line, backward, side, and special stunts in saddle, pyramids and jumping through blazing rings.

Everyone is invited to the picnic. Everyone is instructed to leave all guns behind and enjoy a day with friends and friends. The instruction is to come early and stay late and enjoy every minute of the day. The program follows:
10:12 A. M.—Parade to grounds, in charge of Mr. Smith, Kingston.
11 A. M.—Start of county horse shoe tournament in charge of Joe Boy, Gardiner.
12:12 P. M.—Judgment of horse and horse in charge of Mr. Smith, Kingston.
1:12 P. M.—County horse shoe tournament in charge of C. E. Webster.

Had Planned a Wide Revolt in Mexico Sunday

Mexican Officials Take Approximately Fifty Persons into Custody, Including a General in Federal Army, Charged With Participating in Plot.

Mexico City, Aug. 17 (AP).—Some fifty persons, including a general in the federal army and all members of the city council of the town of Amecameca have been taken into custody in the federal district, charged with having participated in a plot of wide ramifications for uprisings last Sunday against the government's religious regulations.

The general's name is withheld but secret service officials says his is the first case of disaffection in the army thus far.

There are some suggestions in unofficial circles that the concentration of forces of General Enrique Estrada near the Mexican border in California with the alleged purpose of crossing the frontier into Mexico may have been connected with the alleged plot and as part of a general revolutionary movement.

The Catholic Episcopate said it was known that a number of Catholic leaders had been arrested but that it was understood the police were searching their homes for missing church treasures.

It also stated that no information of any uprising having been planned by Catholics in opposition to the religious regulations had been obtained. It was pointed out that the church authorities had announced on several occasions that the attitude of the church was a peaceful one, and that no uprising against the state was contemplated.

Late last night the police announced that eight of those arrested had been released. No reason was given for setting them free. It was said by the police officials that in some Catholic homes they had found dynamite and rifles and also documentary evidence showing that an uprising had been planned.

According to the police some of the Catholics arrested in the suburb of San Angel Sunday when disorders occurred at the Church of San Jacinto between communicants and the police, were suspected of attempting to hide important documents dealing with the reported attempt at revolt. Previously the police had asserted that they had not found arms or ammunition or evidence that an uprising was being planned in San Angel.

Miller has been missing since and authorities in the vicinity of his home have been notified of his absence. He was about 27 years of age, somewhat stout, smooth-shaven and wore dark clothes. The missing man was employed in the Germantown cold storage plant.

Say That Farm Credit Plan Is Being Considered

President Coolidge and Several New York Bankers It Is Claimed Will Consider a $100,000,000 Farm Credit Plan in an Effort to Bring Farmers Relief.

New York, Aug. 17 (AP).—A $100,000,000 farm credit plan that would afford relief to the farmers is a plan that will soon be under consideration by President Coolidge and several New York bankers, it was said today. Members of the firm of J. P. Morgan and Company and Kuhn, Loeb and Company would not discuss the proposed plan in advance of official invitation from President Coolidge.

Mr. Kahn gave the distinct impression that a plan was afoot but to any details he was extremely reticent.

Some of the New York bankers are quoted by the New York Times as saying that the farmers have all the credit facilities they now require and that they would not be benefited by the proposed plan, while others declared that good would come of a serious study of the farmers' economic condition and that intelligent aid should be extended to agriculture as it has been to manufacture.

Magnus W. Alexander of the Industrial conference board, and Owen D. Young, chairman of the board of the General Electric Company, who have given long study to the farm relief question, are out of the city and their whereabouts could not be obtained.

U. S. Will Leave Mexico Alone

Summer White House Spokesman Points Out That as Long as American Lives or Property Are Not Destroyed United States Cannot Interfere With Mexico's Religious Policy.

Paul Smith's, N. Y., Aug. 17 (AP).—While the petition of the Knights of Columbus asking that the United States intervene in Mexico to protect Catholic church men in their religious dispute with President Calles was not referred to directly, it was reiterated today at the summer executive offices in behalf of President Coolidge that the Washington government has no authority under department usage to interfere in the purely domestic affairs of Mexico.

Whenever the rights of American citizens in person or property have been infringed, it was added, the American government will do what it can to see that these rights are duly respected.

Secretary Kellogg of the State Department, who is a guest at the Summer White House, has informed President Coolidge that he has knowledge of but one specific complaint concerning taking of church property in Mexico. This was lodged with James R. Sheffield, the American ambassador to that country, and the latter, upon making representations to the Mexico City government has been informed the case would be adjusted.

Have Americans Suffered?
It is difficult to say, it was stated on behalf of Mr. Coolidge, whether American citizens have suffered in Mexico, for this is a broad term. Some have been expelled under article 33 of the Mexican constitution. It was added, but whenever this measure is used without any action on the part of the Americans against whom it is used it has been the practice of the American ambassador to intervene, some times successfully and at other times unsuccessfully.

As for the oil land controversy, it was said, all that could be stated at this time was that Mexico has made large concessions to the demands of the United States on this question but there are still a number of questions that have not been definitely determined.

Man Accused in Canton Murder Breaks Down

Louis Mazer, of Canton, Accused in Presence of Parents, of Murdering Don R. Mellett, Publisher, Collapses—Taken to Private Office Where, It Is Reported, "He Was Telling All."

Cleveland, Ohio, Aug. 17 (AP).—Louis Mazer, of Canton, Ohio, accused in the presence of his aged parents of having murdered Don R. Mellett, vice crusading publisher of the Canton Daily News, collapsed today and was taken into an office away from the nerve wracking stares of his accusers where, it was reported, "he was telling all," to United States District Attorney A. E. Bernstein.

Mazer collapsed when the district attorney told him for the first time that he was wanted for the slaying.

Nervous and Agitated.
Mazer was nervous and agitated when he was taken in to face his accusers. His appearance led excited observers to believe him a nervous user, but this belief was flatly denied by Joseph Roach, Chicago cleanup man who has directed the investigation that led to the accusation against Mazer.

Charge Brings Collapse.
The shock of the words "You are charged with the murder of Don R. Mellett," was declared by Roach to have been the immediate cause of Mazer's collapse.

From Mazer authorities hope to obtain admissions that will permit immediate and complete solution of the case.

Mazer was taken from Bernstein's office into the office of the marshal where he was questioned by Bernstein and two others.

Ottinger Wins Labor's Approval

Two State Labor Organizations Adopt Resolutions Commending New York Attorney General's Stand in Important Matters.

As a result of recommendations made by Attorney General Albert Ottinger to extend the Workmen's Compensation Act and his action in clearing court calendars of litigation involving settlements under that law, the State Federation of Labor and the Building Service Employees Union have adopted resolutions commending Mr. Ottinger for his stand and approving his proposed amendments to the present law.

Immediately upon assuming office Mr. Ottinger set out to close the vast amount of litigation involving technical points in the present Workmen's Compensation Act. Within two months he had cleared the court calendars of such cases and appreciating the necessity of a more workable law to bring about a more speedy adjustment of such cases made the following recommendations:

1. Elimination of the $3,500 limit fixed in cases of partial disability. 2. Extension of the one year period in which employees may file claims to three years. 3. Liberalizing the rule for computing compensation in cases where arms and legs have been amputated. 4. Empowering the State Industrial Board to adopt a standardized eye test to determine loss of vision. 5. Allowing interest on claims from the date of the award instead of permitting a lapse of thirty days. 6. Requiring employers to pay, at once, for necessary medical or surgical treatment for employees. 7. Making it a misdemeanor for corporations to neglect to insure employees. 8. Facilitating the entry of judgments against employers or insurance carriers assessed by the State Industrial Commission. 9. Broadening the jurisdiction of the State Industrial Commission and the courts in assessing costs. 10. Requiring employers, as well as insurance carriers, to make payments to the State fund for crippled workmen in death cases where the victims leave no relatives. 11. Simplifying the statutory definition of "employer" so as to include officers, directors and managing agents of corporations employing men or women in hazardous occupations. 12. Liberalizing the present law so as to provide for compensation for employers who contract disease as a result of the nature of their work.

In approving these recommendations the State Federation of Labor highly commended the attorney general for his stand in all labor matters. The Building Service Employees Union which comprises all employees in apartment houses, office buildings and theatres and according to Charles W. Nicholson, vice president of the International Union, has a potential membership of over 100,000 in the city of New York, said: "We most heartily endorse the amendments recommended by Attorney General Ottinger and highly commend Mr. Ottinger for advocating them."

Directors' Individual Liability.
It is not generally known that the directors are on personal notes now for $40,000, money borrowed in order that the hotel might be gotten in readiness for opening and that all payments due contractors be met as due and discounts taken on material and supply bought. At one time when there was need of money for immediate use in order to obtain discounts on supplies the president of the board of directors borrowed $50,000 on his individual credit.

Give Stockholders Opportunity.
The original stockholders are to be given an opportunity to increase their holdings on the original terms, one share of common stock as a bonus with every $200 of preferred stock bought. Payments will be advanced to cover a period of six months. If the stockholders will loan their own corporation the $100,000 needed to retire floating debt and make immediately needed extensions and improvements, there will be no necessity for asking to outsiders and, as Mr. Carl says, "we will own it all in the family of original stockholders."

Boy While Bathing Hit BY MYSTERIOUS BULLET.
Raymond Clifford, 12, of Brooklyn, was nearly drowned Sunday evening when he was swimming in the Blauvelt creek near Nyack. While the boy with some companions was splashing in the water, a shot came out from the woods nearby. The boys noticed young Clifford grab his hip and sink into the stream, but did not pay any heed to him as they thought that he was fooling. When he did not appear on the surface of the creek his companions went to his rescue and he was rescued shortly. He was unconscious and was taken to the Nyack Hospital, where Dr. Stephen A. Boyd pronounced his condition serious, due to being struck by the bullet that fractured his hip, and from submersion.

League Dairymen To Celebrate

Tenth Anniversary to Commemorate
Beginning of Real Cooperative Movement in Milk History With Milk Strike of October, 1916.

At a recent meeting of the board of directors of the Dairymen's League a committee was selected to formulate plans for the ten year anniversary celebration on October 1.
It was ten years ago on that date that the now historic milk strike of 1916 took place, an event which marked the beginning of real cooperative marketing among the dairymen of the New York city milk shed.

The celebration will be unique in that it will not be held at one place but will take the form of local celebrations in the various districts of the League. Local committees are being appointed and preliminary plans for the celebration in many League localities are under way.
League dairymen of central New York counties, including Madison, Onondaga, Herkimer and Oneida, have already designated Syracuse as the place where they will hold their celebration on October 1. J. D.
Miller, vice president of the League, and R. E. Van Cise, production manager, will be the principal speakers.
Many localities will have as one of the features of the program a review of League history in that section, especially during the trying days from 1916-1921. Pageants depicting in dramatic form these earlier historic days of dairying in the territory will also be a feature on the programs.

Ancient Indian Legend

The following legend is told of a fort about 25 miles from New Orleans named "Chef Menteur." The Choctaws were conspicuous for their love of truth, but one of the chiefs was known to perjure frequently. He was called and settled on a peninsula projecting into Lake Pontchartrain, which therefore was called "Chef
Menteur," which is French for "Lying Chief." The fort was named for this place.

 KINGSTON, N. Y., AUG. 17, 1926.

The report comes that the recent hurricane in southern waters "ranked so many run-running craft" that the coast guard is enjoying comparative rest from its incessant labors. "It blows the wind that profits nobody," as the bard of Avon found reason to observe.

"Gloomy" Dean Inge says truly enough that "many things were done in the World War which we never expected to hear of again in Europe," but too sweepingly adds that "every country is full of savages." Every country has its plentiful share of them, but happily no country is "full" of them.

Referring to Representative Tillson's warning that the "mania for laws and more laws" is dangerous to the stability and perpetuity of American institutions, the Providence Journal says: "Laws should not outrun the necessity for them, yet Congress and every legislature runs overtime in the mad attempt of faddists, theorists and sinister politicians to satisfy their craving for the creation of new statutes. The more laws there are, the harder obedience becomes."

STATE AND LOCAL FAIRS.

In the beginning, the county and town fairs and the state fair were held for the purpose of encouraging agriculture and the domestic arts, improvements in the breeds of animals and inventions intended to make life on the farm easier. Today these same fairs, of course, fulfill a similar mission, but in addition they afford an excellent opportunity for the New York farmer to advertise his products. The farm population of New York state is decreasing. The great bulk of our population resides in cities and villages and a large proportion are not familiar with the farms or farm products.

During this month and next some eighty-five fairs will be held in all sections of New York state. In remote rural communities preparations are being made for the annual fall festival, which has come to have its social as well as its economic side. New York State annually appropriates a quarter of a million dollars to encourage and support these institutions and awards are made on the basis of premiums paid, with the maximum amount to any one fair fixed at $4,000.

Therefore, farmers have an opportunity to patronize fairs in their own particular sections and to advertise by making exhibits at the fairs which will increase the interest of the community in the fair as an institution, and which will also serve to advertise the products of New York state farms.

LIKELY TO OCCUR AGAIN.

Governor Smith, in a financial statement issued to let the people know what is done, with public money, declares that the open season for political oratory is approaching and we will be treated to misrepresentation as to our financial status. Then he goes on, as he says, with an analysis of the increase of appropriations so it may be understood, all of which reads like an alibi prepared by the Governor in anticipation of what he may have to explain as to the cost of government under his administration.

The governor gives many figures to support his contention that there will be misrepresentation, but apparently he overlooks one misrepresentation of his own. After he enumerates various items showing increases, he says: "Over and above this a number of small, new appropriations were made which are not likely ever to occur again. These include appropriations for the state's participation in the commemorative celebration, the purchase of battle-ship relics, provision for several commissions and the state's obligation to the Hospital Retirement Fund."

Ordinarily this might be convincing were it not that the fourth annual report of the state commission on pensions says: "The actuary of the state hospital system estimates that the deficit will be between $14,000,000 and $15,000,000 on December 31, 1926. If all employees remain in the state hospital system which means that the annual contributions of the state will be in the neighborhood of $840,000 per annum."

Thus the $840,000 contribution the state must make every year, and nobody knows exactly for how long, may have been overlooked, but it destroys the governor's claim as to the number of small new appropriations which are not likely ever to occur again, or else the actuary of the state hospital system is all wrong. And it may be well to remember that Governor Smith claims infallibility as to state finance, which adds to the interest in the statement he got out so far ahead of the fall campaign.

PREVENTING HEART AILMENTS.

It is only a few years ago since medical students were taught that heart ailments were to be treated with strychnine, digitalis, alcohol, and so forth. That if there was a murmur due to leakage of the valves of the heart, that the individual might drop dead any time, and that absolute rest, with heart stimulants, was the proper treatment. But now drugs play a small part in the treatment of heart conditions. In the first place a murmur is not considered as of importance in itself any more. A heart with a leaky valve, but beating regularly, slowly, and with good power, is considered a safe heart.

It is the fast heart, the irregular heart, the heart with poor muscular power, that is now considered the unsafe heart.

Where the pulse shows strongly in the veins in the neck, where the heart is enlarged, where there is swelling of the feet, and irregularity in the beat, then the heart is not considered as normal. However, Mackenzie the great heart specialist has taught that "The best way to determine the real condition of the heart is to find out how it responds to work or effort, that is the amount of physical exertion in which the patient can indulge without showing heart symptoms, that is breathlessness, and a very rapid beat."

Now what causes most of our heart ailments? Two out of every hundred men, women and children have heart ailments. In this country one out of every eight deaths is due to the heart, and in people over forty years of age, one in every five dies from some form of heart trouble. Except for the few that are born with some heart ailment, infection is blamed for all forms of heart ailments.

Now irrespective of the form of infection in the body, whether it is from special illnesses like scarlet fever, rheumatism, or from infections from teeth and tonsils, this infection must bathe the lining of the heart, with the great probability of damage to the lining. Therefore anything our public health authorities can do to prevent infections throughout the community, and anything the individual can do to lessen infection from his teeth, tonsils, and other parts, will serve to prevent heart disease throughout the land. This means the saving of thousands of lives, and untold misery to thousands more.

DON'T WASH DISHES WHEN THEY WILL DRY

Dishes have to be washed but why wipe them if it is not necessary? A wire dish drainer will hold the washed china and if scalding water is used to rinse it, the china will dry itself in a more sanitary way than can be done with a towel, according to the state college of home economics at Ithaca, N. Y.

Glasses, and silver need wiping and should be wiped while hot. Pots and pans may be wiped with the dish cloth wrung out in clean water.

Short cuts in dish washing begin with putting pots and pans to soak as soon as they are emptied. Greasy pans are easier to wash if wiped out with newspaper before soaking. Eggs and milk dishes should be washed in cold water, and greasy or sugary dishes need hot water. Frequently the pots and pans may be washed immediately after using, and while other parts of the meal are cooking. To get as many of them as possible out of the way before-hand shortens the work afterwards.

The time taken to clear the table, clear working spaces, put away food, and scrape and pile dishes before beginning to wash, saves time in the end. Rubber scrapers are useful to scrape the dishes, and they may hang in a handy spot near the sink.

In glassware, should usually be washed first as it is cleanest, then silverware. Fresh, hot, soapy water should be used for the china if there are many dishes. Knives are usually washed separately, and, if they have bone or wooden handles, the handles should be kept out of the water.

Democracy Drunk With Majorities

Struthers Burt, Editor of Law, Recalling Against Statutory Legislation—What Various Nations Are Doing.

Democracies, "drunk with the lawless of majorities," have yet to learn the true functions of government and law, asserts Struthers Burt, author and ranchman, in the August Scribner's Magazine.

In an article entitled "The Sense of Law," Mr. Burt says:

"We are witnessing today, more obviously in America than elsewhere, but none the less throughout the world, the curious spectacle of the law being punished by the sense of law, and this punishment will continue, with all its disastrous consequences, until the law reforms itself—the law and its administration. Authority stands responsible before the bar of real justice; and it is more guilty than recognized criminality, for it is supposed to be less hampered and better informed. Through slow centuries of warfare and revolution monarchy has at last learned what the sense of law implanted in the minds of even its humblest citizens is, and today the few remaining constitutional monarchies—England, Holland, the Scandinavian countries—are the only partially law-respecting countries in the world; the only countries, that is to say, where authority considers itself responsible to the people and the people consider themselves responsible to authority. Indeed, some of the Scandinavian governments have evolved even to the point where they realize that one of the functions of government is to promote such little considered necessities as the desire for gaiety, the love of beauty, and the rational happiness of their citizens. A bizarre idea when one considers the present sullen dislike of most governments for their peoples and of most peoples for their governments. It is rumored that last certain Scandinavian countries officials, even goes to the length of insisting that minor servants and the police be courteous to the ordinary man, let alone being just."

"Democracies, drunk with the lawlessness of majorities, have yet to learn their lesson."

TILLSON PROPERTY SOLD TO NEW JERSEY PARTIES

J. Paradies, realtor of 19 Railroad avenue, this city, was called Saturday to Rutherford, N. J., to close a transaction on the beautiful country place of Mrs. Elizabeth Schramm which is located about a mile from the village post office at Tillson. This property has been considered one of the most handsome places in Ulster county. The property was purchased about 12 years ago, and after spending a great sum of money it was brought up to the condition it is now in. Since the death of a sister of Mrs. Schramm she was compelled to sell and make her home at Grand Rapids, Mich. Since Mrs. Schramm has been living in that section she has made a host of friends and was a great worker in the churches and for all good causes. She will be greatly missed. The new owners, Mr. and Mrs. Walter M. Mills of Rutherford, N. J., have taken possession of the property and will make it their permanent home. For a number of years Mr. and Mrs. Mills have been spending their summer vacation in and about Ulster county.

Today's Story in New York History

by Frederic A. Godcharles.

(Copyright, 1926, by the Author)

Robert Fulton, Native of Lancaster County, First Demonstrates Steamboat, August 17, 1907.

Robert Fulton demonstrated the first successful commercial steam vessel when he opened the throttle on the "Clermont" and she slowly, but surely moved against the swift current of the Hudson River.

Robert Fulton was born on a farm in Little Britain Township, Lancaster County, Penna., in 1765. The boyhood of Robert was filled with a desire to express his feelings through the dual medium of painting and mechanics. He seemed to love both with equal ardor.

In Lancaster lived a clever man named William Henry, who had made some experiments with a steamboat.

Robert placed a paddle wheel on his rowboat after the Henry plan, but propelled it by hand. It is quite possible that he dreamed of the greater speed if steam power could be applied.

Following the advice of some friends, in 1786, he went to England, where he devoted several years to painting, under the tuition of Benjamin West, who received him into his own home. Here he became acquainted with the Duke of Bridgewater, the founder of the great canal system of Great Britain, who induced Fulton to abandon art and take up the study of mechanical science.

Fulton soon invented a double-inclined plane for raising or lowering boats from one level to another. In 1794 he devised a mill for sawing marble. In 1796 he evolved the idea of cast-iron aqueducts, and a structure of this kind was built over the River Dee. He designed several bridges; invented machinery for spinning flax; another for making ropes; one for digging ditches, and a dispatch boat.

In 1796 he published a "Treatise on the Improvement of Canal Navigation," copies of which were sent to President Washington, and other public officials, accompanied by letters telling of the advantages to be derived by canal navigation in America.

From 1797 to 1804 he resided in Paris with Joel Barlow, the American representative at the French court. During this period Fulton invented a submarine or pneumatic boat, called a "torpedo" designed to be used in naval warfare.

Benaparte appointed a commission to examine it. He could easily descend to any depth, or rise to the surface. On one occasion he remained below the surface for four hours. The French government decided to patronize the project, and Fulton accepted an invitation from the British minister, but would not agree to sell them a secret which the United States might need.

Fulton returned to the United States in 1806, and devoted his thought to the perfection of a steam boat.

When in France Fulton had made the acquaintance of Robert R. Livingston, who was much interested in inventions. Livingston had already built one, which proved a failure. The two men now joined forces. This made a fine association for Fulton's knowledge of machinery was far greater than Livingston's, but the latter had the wealth and influence which could bring an invention to the public.

Livingston obtained the sole right for them to navigate the waters of New York state for twenty years, if they could produce a steam vessel capable of a speed of four miles an hour against the current of the Hudson River.

Fulton finished his first steamboat in the spring of 1807. He called it the "Clermont," which was the name of the Livingston estate near Albany. The first trip from New York to Albany was made on Monday, August 17, 1807—a day that will never be forgotten.

Crowds assembled at the wharf to see the "Clermont" start. Few believed it would move; many called it "Fulton's Folly." The trip was even more successful than Fulton had anticipated; it excited great admiration and steamboats were rapidly multiplied on American waters. The "Clermont" made regular trips between New York and Albany, at the rate of five miles per hour, but this speed was soon increased by improvements in the machinery.

The success of the "Clermont" caused Fulton to construct other and larger boats, and ferry boats. He also built the world's first steam propelled warship in the War of 1812.

In the midst of his triumph and in the height of his prosperity he died. During the winter of 1814-15 he was building a floating steam battery and visited the works at Paulus Hook near Jersey City. He stood three hours in the cold, and then tramped through pools of water. He became ill from exposure, but again visited the construction. He died February 24, 1815. The New York Legislature wore mourning six weeks. His funeral was the largest ever held in New York city up to that time. His body rests in Trinity churchyard, on Broadway at the head of Wall Street.

Herrick Talks About France

American Ambassador Home For a Vacation, Says He Has Confidence in French People—Anti-American Reports Exaggerated.

New York, Aug. 17 (AP).—Optimism as to the future of France was expressed today by Myron T. Herrick, United States ambassador to France, who returned on the Homeric for a brief vacation.

"Knowing the French people as I do," he said, "I am confident that the French situation will straighten out and confidence be returned in the country on the part of the people."

Mr. Herrick said fundamental conditions in France were sound.

Reports of French ill-feeling against American tourists have been "greatly exaggerated," he asserted. "Every country has its fools—who are fools at home as well as abroad," he said, "and for reports of untoward and great inhospitality in France this is all nonsense. There have been some cases of irritation, but they have been magnified and the government deplors it."

Financial and Commercial

New York, Aug. 17 (AP).—Speculators for the decline succeeded in forcing a sharp reaction in today's stock market but not until nearly a score issues, including United States Steel common, American Smelting, U. S. Industrial Alcohol and Rock Island, had been elevated to new high levels for the year. The decline, which was interpreted in many quarters as a natural correction of the weakened technical position resulting from the rapid advance in many issues during the past few weeks, undoubtedly was given impetus by another large increase in brokers' loans last week and the pronounced stiffening recently in the rates for time money and bankers' acceptances.

Operators for the rise started to mark up prices at the opening, centering their activities on a few high grade industrials and a select list of specialties which give promise of special dividend action within the next few months, but they encountered stiff resistance. A rather widespread tendency to take profits on the bulge, as recommended by several commission houses, was noted, with bear traders also quick to detect signs of weakness.

United States Steel common, after touching a new peak at 159 1/2, rapidly fell back three points. Atlantic Coast Line, Sloss-Sheffield Steel, DuPont and United States Cast Iron Pipe all were selling five to nearly seven points below yesterday's final quotations by early afternoon. Most of the early gains of one to four points were wiped out, or substantially reduced, before the end of the third hour, with constructive interests showing a disposition to step aside and allow the reaction to run its course.

There was no business news of importance during the session although publication of several earnings, sales and production statements furnished cumulative evidence of the prosperity now enjoyed by widely diversified lines of trade and industry.

NOT A GOOD "RISK"

Joseph Auslander, the poet, recently applied to a life insurance company for an endowment policy which would pay him a good sum of money regularly after 20 years have elapsed. Several days later, an investigator for the company rang the door bell of one of Auslander's neighbors, Annette Margules, who played the role of Teodora in "White Cargo," and asked for information about him.

"Why, Mr. Auslander is one of the greatest living poets—listen to this," cried Miss Margules, and producing a copy of his volume of verse, "Cyclops' Eye," began to read one of the poems. "But," interrupted the investigator, "has he any money in the bank?"

"What difference does that make?" Miss Margules almost shouted. "Why, the man's immortal." "My goah!" the investigator answered. "That's bad for the insurance company."

THEATER FOR CHILDREN

A special theater for school children is being organized in Stockholm as an effort to the influence of the more commercial forms of entertainment. At the outset only matinees will be given at the Oscar theater. Under the leadership of their teachers the pupils of the Stockholm schools, public as well as private, will form an organization, the membership fee in which will entitle each member to attend at a low cost a certain number of performances. Classical plays, high-class comedies and recitals by capable artists will make up the program. The idea is to train discriminating audiences, rather than amateur performers.

WILL STUDY TABLETS

Religious beliefs regarding life beyond the grave, held by the Egyptians more than three thousand years before the birth of Christ, may be revealed in inscriptions on stones just discovered in the University of California museum.

Two stones on which inscriptions were carved served as the jamb and lintel of the tomb of Senneketem, which was explored by archeologists about the time the Civil war ended. Senneketem probably was an officer of the ancient king of Egypt. He may have been the founder of a hereditary line of keepers whose duty it was to guard the tombs from the depredations of grave robbers, a form of outlawry that is as old as mankind itself.

Dr. F. N. Lutz, professor of Egyptology. He expects to make known a translation of the inscription soon.

DEFINITIONS DON'T COUNT

A certain Indianapolis girl who permitted attention by a very affable young man whom she suspected of luring her too freely at times, had been told that persons who had "one drink too many" were unable to pronounce recent sounding words distinctly.

On this particular evening she decided to make the test, and when her friend called asked him to pronounce "unconquerable."

"The young man, ignorant of the purpose, but willing to oblige, mumbled the word slowly in a struggle to form the word and then quietly said: "One hundred fifty."

The girl is still wondering whether the test was satisfactory.

ROSE BUSH'S OLD GROWTH

A remarkable freak of plant life is to be found at the home of Mrs. Eugene Briggs, Lebanon, N. H. A rose bush growing just outside the door and beneath the ivy-covered window, has sent out shoots in several directions, most of which have passed their way into the cellar. From there they turned their way through a long tunnel and continued to grow, pushing toward a window where the branches turned out into a beautiful climbing rose, growing all over the window, filling the window with blossoms and the room with fragrance.

Boxing Board Takes No Action

State Athletic Commission Shifts Further Responsibility for Dempsey-Tunney Bout to Tex Rickard Who Plans Court Action.

New York, Aug. 17 (AP).—Deciding that it had taken all possible steps to clear the way for the Dempsey-Tunney heavyweight battle here September 16 the State Athletic Commission today shifted further responsibility to Tex Rickard, who plans court action to force the licensing of the champion.

An admission that the boxing game in New York now is "tottering" was contained in a statement issued by Commissioner George Brower after the meeting in which he also declared that since he and Commissioner Muldoon had "fully discharged the official duties" entrusted to them, responsibility now rests upon the shoulders of others who have before them for their guidance the opinions of Attorney General Ottinger that the license committee, in refusing Dempsey a permit, has exceeded its powers.

The commission's only official act today was to vote to incorporate the attorney-general's opinion in the minutes and send a copy to the license committee, which turned down Dempsey's application for a second time last night.

PATRON OF THE CRIPPLED

HOW WOUNDS HEAL

The main thing to do with a wound is to let nature do her best and not interfere too much with her, according to a Boston doctor, who was recently giving some suggestions to his fellow-physicians on the treatment of accidental wounds. Nature prevents infection by various methods. Blood washes out the wound, carrying away a certain amount of foreign matter, including bacteria. The blood also contains certain "antibodies" which act as chemical antiseptics and kill bacteria. Nature repairs a wound by bathing the injured tissue with serum which contains cell food, and with white blood cells which absorb and digest badly damaged tissue.

How to Start Screws

In tinkering with a watch, a camera or other article containing very small screws, the householder who does not have a magnet handy often finds his impatience and patience sorely tried before he gets everything back in place. The following use of a wooden magnet, if served into the shop in the hand of a shop owner, will serve to start the screw. Then it may be tightened with a small screwdriver. Regular screw thread.

HOW BREAD SODA IS MADE

Formerly most of the sodium carbonate of commerce was derived from the ashes of certain plants, chiefly barilla and kelp, but at the present time the quantity derived from all other sources is insignificant when compared with that manufactured from common salt. The French Academy of Sciences in 1775 offered a prize for a method of making sodium carbonate from salt. Among the processes submitted was that of Nicolas Leblanc, which was of promising merit, and being granted a patent in 1791, he began the manufacture on a commercial scale. The Leblanc process is regarded as the most important discovery in the entire range of chemical manufactures, and has furnished about one-half of the world's supply of soda.

Find Negro Guilty Of Serious Charge

Allen Shackelford, a negro, 37 years old, who is employed on the Rose brickyard in the town of Ulster, was found guilty after a trial before Judge Shufeldt in police court today of driving an automobile while intoxicated and was sentenced to ten days in the county jail and fined $150. In default of paying the fine he must serve one day in jail for each $5 of the fine.

Shackelford was arrested on Flatbush avenue about 2 o'clock Sunday morning by Officer Leonard who testified that the negro was intoxicated and walked with a stagger, and that when arrested the car he was driving was zigzagging from side to side on the road. Officers Burger and Fout also testified that at police headquarters Shackelford had informed them he had been drinking beer and hooch.

According to Shackelford's story, however, he had not been drinking that night. He said he had driven into Kingston from a dance at East Kingston and had gone to Marie Purdie's house at 69 Chambers street. From there he, together with Ralph Brooks, George Willy and Mrs. Purdie, had driven up Broadway. At the West Shore woman and Willy had gotten out of the car and Shackelford and Brooks proceeded out Flatbush avenue and were on the way to East Kingston when the car was stopped by the officer.

Through Cairo, Tannersville, Palenville and other sections service was interrupted from 2 o'clock in the afternoon until 11 that night. H. H. Reger, who is in charge of the construction department of the company, had three gangs of men making repairs.

Lightning struck the lines in several places, breaking down insulators at widely separated points. The line was down in three places.

A pole at the foot of the former Otis incline was burned off by lightning.

WHEAT SUPPLY MAY BE AS LARGE AS LAST YEAR

Washington, Aug. 17 (AP)—The world's wheat supply this year outside of Russia and China, may be close to that of last year, the Department of Agriculture estimated today after considering the latest forecasts of production. The demand, it said, may be stronger than a year ago, because of low stocks of old wheat, reduced supplies of rye and potatoes and short wheat crops in the Orient.

Eddy Greets Soviet Leaders

Y. M. C. A. Leader Expresses Delight at Visiting a Nation That Challenges Capitalistic Countries—Statement Starts Controversy in Y. M. C. A.

Chicago, Aug. 17 (AP)—The message of greeting extended to Soviet leaders at Moscow by Sherwood Eddy, international Y. M. C. A. worker, has precipitated a controversy within that organization.

Quoting Mr. Eddy as expressing delight at visiting a country that stood as a challenge to "nations ruled by swollen, selfish capitalism," President William Francis of the Chicago Y. M. C. A. demands repudiation of the remark as representing the attitude of the association. Mr. Francis directed protests yesterday to Adrian Lyon, chairman of the general board of the organization and to Fred W. Ramsey, president of the national council.

MAY THROW LIGHT ON "LOST COLONY"

North Carolina History in Spanish Documents.

Discovery of documents which have lain untouched in the vaults of Spain for three centuries and more, has made available for the first time extensive outside information bearing on the early history of North Carolina and is expected to reveal the actual fate of Sir Walter Raleigh's lost colony on Roanoke Island.

Ten thousand pages of the ancient manuscript reports of Spanish explorers and adventurers in North America, beginning with a voyage into North Carolina waters about the time of the disappearance of the lost colony and continuing down through the Aaron Burr conspiracy and the negotiations between Spain and Col. John Sevier for the delivery to Spain of the territory now embraced by Tennessee have been secured. Photostatic copies of the archives have already been received by the North Carolina Historical society.

The records are mainly reports of expeditions sent out to explore the New world and to check the expansion of the English. The Spaniards found themselves shut in with only Florida undisputedly theirs. The British had taken the West Indies and were planning to colonize the mainland. The Spaniards were particularly jealous of the attempt to plant a colony in North Carolina. While complete translations of the records have not yet been made, enough has been done to indicate that the Spanish undertook an expedition along the North Carolina coast toward the end of the sixteenth century to put down the attempts of the English, and it is believed that the lost colony was destroyed by the Spanish at this time.

Cabin John Bridge

A bridge northwest of Washington is called Cabin John bridge. This bridge is over Cabin John creek a short distance from where that little stream empties into the Potomac. Tradition says that in the early days a queer character lived in a cabin along the banks of this stream. This hermit was known by no other name than John. As time went on he became known as John of the Cabin or Cabin John, a name which was later given to the creek. A legend still survives in the vicinity that the hermit left a large amount of treasure buried near where Cabin John bridge is now located. But the story of Cabin John has never been proved. It may have its origin in a nearby bridge to account for the name Cabin John. Some records of western Maryland show that in 1794 the creek was called Cabin John creek. It is probable that Cabin John was a corruption of Captain John.

LOST CHILDREN WERE CARED FOR AND FATHER NOTIFIED.

Monday two children, aged 9 and 7 years respectively, were placed on a bus at High Falls while their aunt followed in another car to Kingston Point where the aunt and children expected to take the Day Line steamer to return to Brooklyn. However, the aunt and children became separated and the aunt sailed on the boat leaving behind the children, who she thought were on board. Mrs. Dugan, who conducts the cigar stand at the pier, took charge of the children and kept them over night. At midnight the children's father, Mr. Seidenweber, telephoned the police from Brooklyn that his children were lost. He was informed of their whereabouts and stated he would come to Kingston early today for them. The children and aunt had been boarding at Heineke's at High Falls.

New York Visited By Severe Storm

At Least Two Men Were Killed by Freakish Storm While More Than a Half Million Dollars Worth of Property Was Damaged—Storm Swept In From Long Island Sound.

New York, Aug. 17 (AP)—The Metropolitan area today was counting the cost in lives and property of a freakish storm that caused damage on both sides of Manhattan Island. Two men were killed and two injured by a water spout that swept in from Long Island Sound last night over the wealthy and thickly populated suburb of Glen Cove, L. I. Another man was reported missing. Cottages were wrecked, trees uprooted, wire communications broken and the road along the sound choked with debris. A stone wall was blown over and chimneys toppled.

Two racing sloops of the New York Yacht Club were caught by the spout in Glen Cove Harbor and one was capsized. One of the houses demolished was that of Lynh Hammond, the actor. Amid the whistling of the wind and the swirl of water could be heard fire and burglar alarms set off by the crossing of electric wires.

RAISE FAIR CROPS ON SEMI-ARID SOIL

Zuni Indians Have Mastered Secrets of Nature.

Two thousand Indians in western New Mexico own something like 200,000 acres of land. This is the Zuni reservation. Two hundred thousand seem like a lot of land for so small a number of people to own, but an Indiana farmer seeing the country for the first time would consider it poor picking for cattle and hogs, says a writer in the Indianapolis News. And yet, the Zuni Indians make a good living off the semi-arid land, which is cut up into hills, mountains, buttes, mesas, arroyos and a few broad valleys, where corn and melons and squashes are raised. There is some irrigation, but even where there is no irrigation an Indian can, with a crooked stick, punch a few holes in the ground, drop in some grains of corn and raise a fair crop. "With all our scientific knowledge of dry farming and our improved machinery we cannot do as well," declare the white ranchers living in the vicinity.

Centuries of fighting for an existence in the midst of adverse climatic conditions have given the Indian an uncanny knowledge of nature in all her moods. In his own country, which was his when Coronado and the conquistadores came 300 years ago in search of the fabled seven cities of Cibola, he knows exactly where the underground water lies nearest the surface. It is there that he plants his corn, his squash and his watermelon seeds.

The Zuni, together with the other Pueblo Indians, have been able, for the most part, to hold on to their land because it came to them as an inheritance, or rather was left to them by the Spaniards when the latter relinquished their rights in the Southwest. In the treaty with the United States it was stipulated that certain lands surrounding the pueblos should remain in possession of the original owners forever.

The Zunis are independent and self-sufficient. They know not the meaning of the word ration. The government furnishes them schools, aids them in obtaining water, improves the breed of their horses and sheep and provides clipping vans for the latter.

The Zuni is practically tied to his family and devoted to children. No orphan in a Zuni pueblo is neglected. "I never heard a Zuni Indian speak a cross word in his home or to his wife, and I never will. It simply isn't done," was the statement made to two Howard tourists recently by the principal of the day school in the pueblo of Zuni.
